

Tshombe Freed For Peace Pilgrimage Among People

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga (AP)—Freed from U.N. house arrest, President Moise Tshombe made a peace pilgrimage deep into southern Katanga on Thursday and was cheered by his people. He appeared to be taking the first reluctant step to meet U.N. demands for unity in the Congo.

But thunderclouds of uncertainty still hung over northern Katanga. An AP dispatch from Kolwezi, where Tshombe had set up headquarters for a time, said a die-hard core of his backers were set to blow up vital copper plants and a power dam there if the United Nations advanced.

On the diplomatic front, the central Congo government in Leopoldville ordered the British and Belgian consuls to get out of Elisabethville — the British said within 24 hours. Leopoldville ousted them because of their "political positions," an apparent reference to their mediation efforts between Tshombe and the United Nations.

Barrett Ordinance No. 42 Protested By Sub-Dividers

MOUNTAINHOME — Last night a group of real estate sub-dividers, businessmen, builders, tradesmen, garage owners, lumber dealers and tavern proprietors appeared before the Supervisors of Barrett Township at a meeting held in the Barrett Township School building, and voiced strong disapproval of Subdivision Ordinance No. 42 which had been approved July 5, 1962.

Among those who spoke against the ordinance were Kennard Lewis, East Stroudsburg attorney, who represented Vacationland Realty Company; Lloyd R. LaBar, contractor of Cresco; Vance C. Megargel, president of Vacationland Realty Company; Charles A. Vogt, a real estate developer and retired plumbing contractor; Paul Schaarschmidt, of Theodore Price Lumber Company; and others.

Atty. Lewis stated that if Ordinance No. 42 had been passed in 1960, Barrett Township would have remained a wilderness. He said that the provision requiring 50-foot wide streets and road, having at least 24 feet of six inch crushed stone would cost too much for any but a very wealthy subdivider to install and build.

He also stated that the requirement that grades of all streets and roads shall be not greater than fourteen (14%) percent was absurd in that mountainous township.

Atty. Lewis further stated that the costs involved in complying with the ordinance would be so great and so uncertain as to cause any reasonable man to

Bitter Cold Wave Spreads In West

An intensifying cold wave, powered by strong winds and drifting snow, knifed deep into the nation's midlands Thursday with no relief in sight.

Blowing snow closed schools and clogged highways in some areas as the cold wave advanced.

Temperatures were as low as -23 degrees along the Canadian border and northern Montana was warned to expect overnight low readings ranging down to -35.

"All interests are advised to prepare for a prolonged spell of quite severe midwinter weather," the Chicago Weather Bureau said in a special bulletin.

Cold wave warnings are in effect for the Midwest from the northern and central Rockies eastward to the Mississippi River

Fire Flares Up Again In Empire State

NEW YORK (AP)—A smoldering fire flared anew Thursday in the Empire State Building, but was extinguished with little damage. The fire department posted a 24-hour guard inside the world's tallest building.

The fire started Tuesday night in water pipe insulation within a conduit shaft that rises to the 85th floor of the 102-story skyscraper. It damaged nine floors and forced evacuation of the building before it was brought under control. Authorities blamed a carelessly discarded cigarette for the blaze.

Apparently sparks from the original fire still remained in the insulation of the building's water pipes, and continued to smolder for another 24 hours. Firemen were called at 7:40 a.m. when an attendant on the 31st floor felt a wall and found it hot. The wall was ripped out and the fire extinguished.

UN Tshombe Action Puzzles The Experts

KITWE, Northern Rhodesia (AP)—The United Nations' action in placing Katanga President Moise Tshombe under house arrest, then releasing him to spearhead their advance to the Northern Rhodesian border has some experts puzzled.

U.N. sources in Elisabethville seem to be as confused as anyone. They indicate that the United Nations decided to put Tshombe under house arrest immediately after he told newsmen Wednesday on his return to Elisabethville that he was prepared to blow up mining and power installations in Katanga.

Correspondents and Union Mine officials who followed Tshombe to the Rhodesian border Thursday said that Tshombe, after discussions with United Nations officials, apparently had a change of heart. They said he agreed to work to give the United Nations freedom of movement in Katanga.

Lift Arrest

At this point, said a U.N. spokesman in Elisabethville, the United Nations lifted the arrest order and the news went around that Tshombe was allowed to go where he wanted.

Several hours afterward however, the Rhodesian troops guarding Tshombe's official residence were still on duty and refuse to let him leave.

Only after newsmen informed U.N. headquarters of this was the guard lifted with the explanation that, "The United Nations is a big organization and it takes time for orders to get through."

Tshombe had agreed to persuade the Rhodesian troops along the railroad to Rhodesia to let the United Nations control the line. On this promise, the Katanga leader was allowed Thursday morning to travel to Molemba to meet with some of his Cabinet ministers there, including Interior Minister Godefred Munongo who is running the area.

Apparently just to make sure Tshombe kept his part of the bargain, the United Nations ordered Ethiopian troops to move along the roads to Rhodesia and to clear the rail line.

Tshombe's return to Elisabethville after his meeting with his ministers at Molemba appeared to indicate he feels safe from any further threat of arrest by the United Nations and that he will now work with them and guarantee their freedom of movement at least to Northern Rhodesia.

This latter freedom of movement would suit Tshombe as well, for the clearing of the railroad will mean that trainloads of supplies, food and fuel can reach Elisabethville where there is a tremendous shortage of essential goods. And Tshombe can regain some prestige by pointing out he was the one who relieved the situation.

LaBar commented that to comply with the 14 percent grade requirement would require so much fill in Oaklyn Park that the costs would be prohibitive, and spoil the appearance of the development.

Megargel requested the Board of Township Supervisors to repeal the ordinance in its entirety.

Harry Lee, attorney, of the law office of C. D. Shull, Stroudsburg, spoke for the supervisors.

The supervisors stated that the ordinance presently was in full force and effect.

No action was taken by the supervisors on the protests of this group.

Khrushchev Stops In Poland En Route To East Berlin

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Premier Khrushchev broke a train journey to East Berlin for scheduled talks Thursday night with Polish leaders as the Soviet government newspaper warned that a Berlin crisis more dangerous than the one over Cuba may be coming.

Ever since it became known that Khrushchev would attend the sixth East German Communist party congress next week speculation has mounted that the Soviet leader would make it the scene for a new effort to settle the Berlin problem.

His stopover here, his first visit to the Polish capital since 1959, was viewed as a preliminary to a possible East-bloc summit in East Berlin.

Gomulka May Attend

Talk of such a summit increased when it was reported the Polish party leader, Wladyslaw Gomulka may attend. That it will not be a complete summit was indicated, however, when Antonin Nowotny, the Czechoslovak party chief, arrived in Moscow on Thursday en route to Indonesia, Cambodia, North Viet Nam and Burma for a series of Southeast Asian visits.

Khrushchev is expected to remain here until the weekend.

The Soviet leader's decision to stop in Warsaw apparently caught Polish government officials by surprise. There were no flags or banners out for him, and only a few hours before his arrival the official Polish press agency said it had no details of his visit.

Khrushchev arrived at a shabby suburban station.

Gone Into Seclusion

The Polish press agency said Khrushchev and his hosts immediately went into seclusion at an undisclosed resort in Olstyn Province, about 75 miles northeast of Warsaw.

The seclusion only heightened an impression of the seriousness of the talks.

Investia, the Soviet government newspaper, said the issue in Berlin "is not merely prestige, but peace, or a military crisis which may become more stormy and difficult to overcome than the one in the Caribbean."

It suggested that Khrushchev again may urge that a United Nations command replace the present U.S., British and French command, or what Moscow calls the NATO command, in West Berlin.

Lawrence To Federal Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. David L. Lawrence of Pennsylvania said Thursday he has accepted an appointment by President Kennedy as chairman of the President's committee on equal opportunity in housing.

Lawrence, who steps down as governor Tuesday, made the announcement after conferring with Kennedy at the White House.

Lawrence, a Democrat, who will be succeeded as governor by William W. Scranton, said he will begin his new duties as soon as he does out his affairs at Harrisburg, and after a week or so of vacation in the south.

He said the purpose of his job is to "encourage acceptance of the President's program and to work with others in the field."

Came As Surprise

Lawrence said Kennedy's offer had come as "a surprise to me."

"But when the President asks you to do something, you do it," he told reporters.

Accompanying Lawrence at a news conference was James E. Webb, executive director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Webb discussed with the governor and the President plans for a research and educational center at Pittsburgh.

Webb said the University of Pittsburgh and 14 other educational institutions in that area have an interest in the matter.

He said an announcement will be made Friday at Pittsburgh concerning the development.

Webb noted that 10 pre-doctoral training fellowships already have been provided at Pittsburgh. He said NASA anticipates an expenditure of some $2 million in the program in the next few years.

Rep. William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., amplifying Webb's announcement, said he had been advised by NASA that it plans to establish a space research and coordination center at the university.

Also, Moorhead said, NASA will provide $500,000 for teaching personnel at the proposed center. Additionally, he said, the agency is working on plans for a laboratory building to be constructed at the center.

Lawrence said he will retain his post as a member of the national Democratic committee. He said this will not interfere with his new position with the administration.

Under Kennedy's executive order of Nov. 20, the equal housing opportunity committee will include in its membership a number of cabinet members, including the secretaries of the defense, agriculture, treasury and the attorney general.

Congress Awaits JFK 'State Of The Union'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress settled down gingerly Thursday for what many members predict will be a long session, running probably until October.

The Senate and House met briefly, after Wednesday's opening ceremonies, and then adjourned to await President Kennedy's annual State of the Union Message.

Kennedy will deliver the message at a joint session of the two chambers Monday night. It is expected to include a general outline of the legislative proposals he will submit in the next few weeks.

The White House announced the President will send his budget to Congress on Thursday, Jan. 17, and his economic message on Monday, Jan. 21.

Speaker of the House John W. McCormack of Massachusetts told a news conference that the 39-vote margin by which the administration won its fight to prevent the rules committee from returning to Southern Democratic and Republican control was "certainly a favorable sign."

McCormack said the 235-196 vote was a half-dozen votes more than he had expected.

Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana, assistant Democratic floor leader, said "more than 50 per cent of the Southerners were with us" and the vote shows "the party is becoming more unified."

In the Senate Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson banged his gavel and a clerk who had journeyed over from the House announced:

"The House of Representatives informs the Senate that a quorum is present and that John McCormack, a representative of Massachusetts, has been elected speaker."

Required By Custom

This was not exactly flash news to the Senate but it was required by custom. Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, issued a statement that he will propose an updating of what he called "a horse and buggy operation" of congressional machinery.

Moss said the last time Congress reformed its procedures was in 1946.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., issued a statement that things should be left the way they are. Criticizing efforts to revise the Senate and House rules, Thurmond said the present rules provide for orderly deliberation and procedure.

As a byproduct, he said, they provide "a measure of stability which resists manipulation and emotionalism, and to some extent even prove impervious to 'fact' manipulation and 'news management' by the executive branch."

Most of the hour-long Senate session was devoted to speeches extolling Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., for 30 years of Senate service, and Sen. Lister Hill, D-Ala., who completes 25 years in the Senate Friday.

Senate Republican leaders called a conference for Monday morning to select a new campaign chairman for 1964 and discuss proposed changes in Senate rules.

Most Republicans expect Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky will be named to the chairmanship post being vacated by Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona. Goldwater is barred from serving another term because he is up for re-election next year.

Walter Asks Funds For Tocks Island

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Among the many bills introduced during the opening day of business in the House of Representatives was one by Rep. Francis E. Walter asked for $140,000 in supplemental appropriations for the Corps of Engineers.

The money would be used to initiate planning for Tocks Island Dam, Walter said. The bill has been referred to the Appropriations Committee for action.

Actually, the bill is approved by the Public Works subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee, and would be incorporated in the 1963 supplemental appropriations legislation. This legislation will probably come to the House floor in mid-June, according to a committee spokesman.

The Corps of Engineers' "capability" figure for the remainder of the fiscal year 1963.

Although the date of need is listed as 1975 by the Corps of Engineers, the project is the largest of any of those authorized for the Delaware River Basin, Walter said.

"It seems logical that the Corps get started on the planning of this project as quickly as possible," Walter said last night.

Total cost of the project, the Eastern Democrat said, is $122,000,000.

Scranton Picks One; Garihan Withdraws

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov.-elect William W. Scranton Thursday filled another cabinet post in his incoming administration as a new cabinet opening occurred.

Scranton designated G. Allen Patterson, 60, Pittsburgh, to become secretary of banking.

But at the same time, Thomas K. Garihan, 48, Allentown, withdrew as the designated appointee to the cabinet post of secretary of property and supplies.

Both cabinet jobs carry an annual salary of $30,000.

Patterson is vice president of the Pittsburgh National Bank. In naming him Scranton said he was "happy to be able to announce the appointment of a man with Mr. Patterson's qualifications for this important post."

A native of Dawson, Fayette County, Patterson was graduated from Dunbar Twp. high school. He attended the University of Pittsburgh and also attended the graduate school of banking at Rutgers University.

He became vice president of the Pittsburgh National Bank in 1954. He is married to the former Dorothy Nirdlinger, Pittsburgh. They have two children.

Garihan is a 20-year veteran of the Bethlehem Steel Co.

In a letter to Scranton he said that since he had agreed to accept the post in the Scranton administration "some attractive opportunities in private industry have arisen." He added:

"It would be unfair to you and your administration to assume the duties of secretary of property and supplies with the knowledge that I might now complete a four-year term in that office. You will remember that this was one of your specific requests."

Dog Dies In Franklin Hill Trailer Fire

A SMALL dog lost its life yesterday when a house trailer caught on fire and was burned extensively on Franklin Hill.

The trailer, a total loss, was owned by Daniel Marvin and was rented to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hinefine.

Russell Hoffman discovered the fire and summoned the owner, Daniel Marvin. They opened a door and the entire inside became enveloped in flame.

Marshall's Creek Fire Co. was called to the scene. They said too much time had been wasted in making the call and they could render no service.

Electric Heater

Fire Chief Ralph Hinefine said that the blaze was caused by an electric heater in the bedroom. His investigation showed that the oil burner was turned off and that the heater was in an "on" position.

The Hinefine family was not in the trailer at the time of the fire.

Pay Milk For Pigs Prisoners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government is providing five million pounds of dried milk for Cuba as part payment for release of prisoners from the Bay of Pigs disaster. As much as 15 million additional pounds may be provided.

The Agriculture Department announced yesterday it is transferring an initial shipment of five million pounds to the American Red Cross. It said the Cuban families Committee, organization of relatives of the prisoners and other anti-Castro Cubans in this country, proposes to raise funds to reimburse the U.S. government.

The dried milk was accumulated by the Agriculture Department under price-support programs at a cost of about 15 cents a pound. On this cost basis, the five million pounds is valued at about $750,000.

The department said the U.S. and Cuban Red Cross will supervise distribution of the milk in Cuba to insure that it reaches children and needy persons.

The presentation was made by his father, David H. Repsher, who was master of the Lodge in 1945.

The jewel given Repsher is a silver square with arms of unequal length. Pendant to this is a square form on which is delineated the 47th problem of Euclid.

Unique among those presented in American jurisdictions, the Pennsylvania emblem is comparable to that given to past masters of lodges in England during the past 150 years.

County Ends Years With Fund Surplus

MONROE County commissioners yesterday announced that as of Jan. 1, 1963, the General and Institutional Funds ended the year with a surplus.

The General fund balance as of the first of the year was $211,102.60. The Institutional balance was $40,226.19. These surplus figures will decrease when the county treasurer's commission is deducted. They are also subject to the auditors.

No Bond Indebtedness
Willard Quick, Monroe County commissioner, said, "We are completing another year, one that finds us with a surplus and another year that shows the county has no bond indebtedness."

Chairman John Lesoine added, "We have not done any work on the 1963 budget but some of the ground work has been started in the office. By ground work I mean reports from tax collectors and some forms have been completed. The actual work on the budget will begin in the very near future."

Last year the county millage was 9 mills, three for the institutional district and six for the county.

Lesoine said, "As of this day I can not make a statement as to what the millage will be for the coming year. It is too early."

Of the new registrations, Republicans hold a lead. Final figures will be announced later.

This week Mrs. Banis will start work on the annual weeding out of registrants who have not cast a ballot for two years. Hundreds are expected to be stricken from the rolls.

The delinquent voters will be notified to report their intentions to remain on the rolls or face cancellation of registration. Those not reporting will be cancelled sometime during the month of February.

Interesting Facts Noted In Letters To Water Gap

By Nellie Burd
Daily Record Correspondent

LETTERS . . . Holidays brought letters to Delaware Water Gap folk from far places.

The Francis Seelys — former pastor here — who are now in Chiangmai, Thailand — announce that after nine years of working on the translation of the Old Testament into more modern Thai, it is ready for editing and then the printer.

Rev. Seely is on the translation committee. Ed and Lucy Seely are at school in India and were to be home for three months vacation. In March the twins, Joyce and Joann, finish their eighth grade studies and in June go to the school in India.

Active At 81
Robert Brueckner, in South Africa, at 81 is still busy though he admits "slowing down a bit." He is trying to plan for a church for some of the Africans who have been thrust into tin cities twelve to forty miles from their former homes in white sections.

He says that the pictures given of conditions in South Africa by our newspapers are over publicized as are those of United States conditions by African newspapers.

Gillard Williamson, son of a Water Gap Presbyterian minister of 55 years ago, writes from Florida of his memories of the Water Gap and its folks. He left there in 1908.

A graduate of Lafayette and a chemist, Williamson has led a suc-

Miss Ely Cited For Child Work

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Miss Gertrude S. Ely, a member of the United Nations Children's Fund, Thursday received the Philadelphia Gimbel Award.

A native of Altoona, Pa., Miss Ely was honored "for a life of dedication to social, government and welfare projects in Philadelphia which have had far reaching effects for good on her fellow Americans."

She received the symbols of the award, an illuminated scroll and a check for $1,000 from H. J. Grinsfelder, executive head of Gimbel's-Philadelphia, at the 31st annual award luncheon.

And her highlight of the luncheon was a memorial tribute to the Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, offered by Miss Marion Anderson, noted singer and a close friend of the late "First Lady of the world."

This is the economical Newport 4-door sedan

We price them small. But we build them big.

$2964 is the kind of price most people associate with a smaller car. They seldom expect to find it on a full-size, precision-engineered Chrysler Newport 4-door sedan.

After all, look at all the value a Chrysler offers: Features like torsion-bar suspension; all-welded, one-piece body; carpeting; trip odometer; and the Newport engine that performs like a champ on regular gasoline.

Then, there's the way a Chrysler is put together. Quality all the way. So well made, in fact, that your Chrysler dealer provides you with America's longest and best new car warranty†—5 years or 50,000 miles. You have fewer worries about expensive repair bills. And because the warranty can be passed on to the next owner, you can count on excellent Chrysler resale value.

So, if you cotton to smaller prices, big value and big cars (remember, we don't build any jr. editions) get in touch with your Chrysler dealer.

*Manufacturer's suggested retail price of Newport 4-door sedan, exclusive of state and local taxes, if any, and destination charges. White wall tires extra.

The body was found about 3:45 p.m. by Greenzweig's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Edith Greenzweig. The elder Greenzweig had made his home with the couple since last September. Investigating troopers said there was no apparent reason for his action. He was last seen by his son about 9:15 a.m., playing a game of solitaire.

Redevelopment Authority To Make Application For E-Burg Project

MONROE County Redevelopment Authority yesterday approved a resolution to make application to the federal government for survey and planning in the Courtland Street Urban Renewal Project. The group convened at the court house, Stroudsburg.

James Bunnell and Atty. Elmer Christine are members of the Monroe County commissioners. The application, subject to approval of the East Stroudsburg Borough Council, requests the federal Urban Renewal Administration to advance $46,027 to the Redevelopment Authority to undertake surveys and prepare plans for the project area.

The Courtland Street Project is bounded by S. Crystal St., the Catholic Cemetery, South Courtland St., and an alley running from S. Crystal to S. Courtland Sts. The alley is located in back tract includes approximately 6.1 acres of land.

The East Stroudsburg Planning Commission proposed the application in December and recommended to the redevelopment authority that it request a planning advance from the federal government. Before the application can be submitted to the Philadelphia Regional Office of the Urban Renewal Administration it must be approved by the East Stroudsburg Borough Council.

Pay For Appraisals
The moneys advanced by the federal government would be used to pay for appraisals, for hiring consultants to prepare the urban renewal plan, and for administrative and legal costs.

The application also requests the federal government to reserve $197,796 as its share of the net project cost and the cost of relocation payment for the Courtland Street Project.

The total cost of the project is this amount the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will be requested to contribute $30,959, and the Borough of East Stroudsburg's share is presently estimated at $30,960.

Many Receive Credit
The borough may receive credit for flood protection work and street improvements which would reduce the amount the borough would have to contribute to the project. The figure for this is unknown at present but William Schmidt, representing Cabot, Candeb & Associates, said that the amount will be known within 10 days and will be presented to the East Stroudsburg Council.

King W. Beers, executive director of the Monroe County Redevelopment Authority, stated that it will be a number of months before planning will begin in the Courtland Street Area. He indicated that after the East Stroudsburg Council's approval of the application the federal government must review it and this review period usually involves three to four months.

Beers also indicated that project executions will not begin until next year, after the plans have been prepared for the project and have been approved.

Second Project

This is the second project being proposed in East Stroudsburg and it is presently being considered for re-use for the new post office and a super market. Both have indicated a strong interest in purchasing the land if it should become available through Urban Renewal. Both of the buildings would become taxed properties as they would be built by private enterprises. The post office would be leased to the federal government at an annual cost and the owner would pay the taxes. The same is true for the super market building.

Sign Appraisers

In other business the authority approved the resolutions to place under contract three persons. J. L. Cohen was contracted as the accountant for the authority at a salary of $75 a month.

Lawrence Ramsey and Walter Dreher were signed into contract as appraisers. Their salaries are as follows: $50 per private parcel, $75 per business parcel, and $5 per vacant parcel.

In closing the authority voted to meet the next three Thursdays in the Commissioners office at 2 p.m.

Juveniles Returned To Parents

TWO teenage boys from Chittenango, N. Y., were turned over to their parents yesterday by Monroe County juvenile authorities after being held overnight in Stroudsburg's borough lockup.

The pair, 14 and 15 years old, were picked up by State Police of the local barracks on charges of driving a car without the owner's permission.

They were reported to have gone to Virginia and were returning to New York State when apprehended.

Mrs. Heberling's Rites Conducted

FUNERAL services for Mrs. Dora Heberling, 71, of Buck Hill Falls were held yesterday at 2 p.m. in the Lantierman Funeral Home with the Rev. William MacLachlan officiating.

Burial was in the Oakland Cemetery, Mountainhome. Pallbearers were Percy Price Jr., Ross Solt, Thomas Price, Roger Solt, Fred Degler Jr., and James Walters.

Besides her husband and mother, she is survived by a daughter, Barbara, wife of Allan E. Granger, Lancaster; two brothers, Harry, Kenvil, living in New Jersey, and Horace, Portland, and two grandsons.

Services will be held Sunday at 1:30 p.m. from the Reed Funeral Home, Johnsonville. Interment will be in Riverview Cemetery, Portland. Friends may call at the funeral home Saturday after 7 p.m.

County Okays Bid For Funds From State

MONROE County commissioners yesterday approved a resolution, okaying the request of the Monroe County Redevelopment Authority to make application for funds from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to be used in plans and surveys for the Courtland Street Urban Redevelopment plan.

The action was taken after a lengthy discussion as to what part the commissioners play in the authorizing of requests of the redevelopment authority.

John Lesoine, chairman of the board of commissioners, assented, "The commissioners are acting in what they believe to be the wants of the residents of East Stroudsburg."

"Not Last Word"

"We (the commissioners) are not the last word in this redevelopment movement. The body with the final word is the East Stroudsburg Council. Be law we must approve or reject resolutions. If they are approved by us they are returned to the council and if they approve the work continues on its natural course."

"If the council rejects the work we approve that is the end of it, since the council has the final word" he concluded.

The resolution asked for $39,959 from the state. This is the proposed state appropriation for the Courtland Street Project.

Grant Aid

In other business, the commissioners discussed several cases being handled by Miss Elizabeth Martin, Monroe County probation officer, and granted aid to several persons appearing before the board.

Grand Jury Probe Of 'A' Today

A FEDERAL grand jury in Scranton yesterday heard testimony from George P. Brodhead, executive officer and former commanding officer of Co. A, First Battle Group, 109th Infantry, Pennsylvania National Guard.

Brodhead was one of five Monroe County residents subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury which is probing alleged check forgeries in the East Stroudsburg unit.

Others subpoenaed, but who did not testify yesterday, are Vincent Marek, Jr., first sergeant of the company; Robert Schoonover, a master sergeant in the unit, and Richard Rugg and Gerald E. Shanley, Jr., both former commanders of the company.

The four will return to Scranton today. A Scranton newspaper reported yesterday that First Asst. U. S. Atty. Carlton M. O'Malley, Jr., spent several hours with a Secret Service agent Wednesday, apparently preparing the case for presentation to the grand jury.

An investigation has been in process for about 18 months, it was learned.

Feeling The Pain

Two years' reflection after leaving the White House have given Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower some ideas on how to lighten the growing burden of Federal government. The President may be the most powerful office in the world today, but Gen. Eisenhower found his powers insufficient to prevent a $20 billion annual increase in the budget during his eight years in office.

The former President's plan would require some Constitutional amendments, which would prevent Congress from appropriating more than the Presidential budget called for except by a two-thirds majority of both houses, a new method of submitting the budget, and Presidential power to veto separate items in any appropriations bill without having to veto the entire bill.

But Gen. Eisenhower realizes that such procedural methods alone can't stem the growth of government. The citizens must do that, the citizens have been somewhat disinterested in doing it, and the General wants to build a fire under them.

He proposes to put the pain back into paying income taxes. Most personal income taxes today are slipped out of pay envelopes before the earner ever sees the money. The earner thinks in terms of "take home pay," and seldom thinks about the money he earned but never received. Under these circumstances, he is not aware of the huge burden he is bearing.

So, General Eisenhower suggests that the Government be allowed to collect no more than half the taxes due through withholding. It would be up to the individual to put his money away, and to dispatch it to Washington once a quarter or once a year. There would be a national cry of "ouch."

Pain serves a purpose by warning us of ailments that need attention. Painless taxpaying has masked what President Eisenhower and others have recognized as a serious ailment of our nation—a Government grown too vast, which saps the vigor of the nation by draining away too much of its life blood.

Pained taxpayers would not be complacent about proposals to enlarge the Government's tax appetite, and might even insist that present tax levels be cut back progressively.

Job Retraining Program

Job retraining may not be the complete answer to unemployment, but the Harrisburg area already is experiencing some of the benefits of the new federal program which sends the jobless back to school to learn a new trade.

Two courses, one in inert gas welding at William Penn High School and the other in instrument repair under the direction of Central Dauphin High School at Lear Inc., were set up here last fall under the provisions of the Clark-Holland Federal Manpower Development Act. Thirty men on unemployment were enrolled and given an income while learning, much as if they were on a GI Bill.

While it is too soon to make broad judgments on the effectiveness of the national program, the early results in this area look good. There were no drop-outs. All 15 men finished the 480-hour course at Lear, Inc., and five have found jobs. At William Penn the course will end next month, but three of the original 15 men already have left to accept jobs, and three more have taken their places in the class.

Restoring Fluidity To Capitalism

The 7,500 employees of the Kaiser Steel Corporation, a big West Coast producer, are scheduled to vote today, January 11, on a union contract that is built around profit-sharing features. Since the proposed agreement has the support of the United Steelworkers of America, it will presumably be accepted.

If the contract does go through, labor relations in this country are bound to take a new turn, and in my opinion it will be considerably for the better. The provisions of the Kaiser contract are complex. But the heart of the program consists of certain easily understood variables. Instead of getting fixed raises in hourly pay, the Kaiser workers will receive approximately thirty-three per cent of a savings fund that is to be built up out of the monetary gains that are likely to come as a result of improved methods of steel making.

The Kaiser company will fix a standard base rate for the cost of producing an ingot ton of steel. Anything that can be shaved from that cost, either by the installation of new equipment or by increased individual labor-hour efficiency, will be shared with the workers. Other provisions in the Kaiser contract are designed to reassure the United Steelworkers of America that "a union man" won't be introduced at a rate that will lead to layoffs and firings.

If a worker does lose his job to an improved machine, he will be assigned a priority number in an employment pool. Anyone cooling his heels for protracted periods in the pool will be guaranteed a year's full pay.

Inasmuch as Kaiser Steel, along with Inland Steel of Chicago, "broke the line" last year by refusing to accept the leadership of United States Steel in the matter of a price rise, the older steel companies are inclined to look askance on anything that Kaiser proposes.

The older companies have a long tradition of loyalty to the steel makers' "club," which is one reason why the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice is inclined to question their habit of trying to concert their moves.

But the "club," in this case, will have to reckon with Kaiser's move toward profit-sharing simply because it is more sensible economically to accept variable costs than it is to tie oneself up with fixed costs.

In the automobile country, the older concerns regard the American Motors Corporation, producer of the Rambler car, much as the old-line steel companies regard Kaiser. They dislike the Rambler not because the recently resigned president of American Motors, George Romney, "knocked the product" of the industry in general by talking about "gas guzzling dinosaurs."

As a reflex of this dislike, the older motor men have had little good to say of the American Motors profit-sharing union contract, which has been running for a year. Yet it cannot be argued that a mandatory hourly pay increase in a automobile

This type of retraining program long has needed emphasis in Pennsylvania. That's why two Pennsylvanians led the fight for the bill that was passed and signed into law. Right now, the Commonwealth has about one-fourth of the approved courses in the nation and one-fifth of the students. In the 76 Pennsylvania courses now in progress, four-fifths of the students are heads of households. Most of them have been out of work for more than three months, and half never finished high school.

Retraining is a logical step to combat the displacement of workers by automation, product changes, the moving of industry—all the economic factors that have made joblessness Pennsylvania's greatest problem.

Its potential effectiveness has been shown here. In four months, retraining has put eight men back to work and made 25 additional men more employable at a training cost of $17,848. That's money well spent, and it will be returned in the taxes paid by these men who have become self-supporting again.

wages is better for a company's health than a contingent pay increase.

Should times turn bad and there are no profits to share, American Motors will be in a better position than those companies which allowed Walter Reuther's automobile workers to impose fixed pay increases on them.

Two hundred years ago the first liberal economist, Adam Smith, warned business men that they could absorb only a certain amount of rigidity. In the early days after World War I, when the rest of the world was struggling to get back into production, wage rises could be financed out of inflationary price increases.

But now that foreign steel—and foreign cars—are moving into the U.S. in increased quantities at relatively low prices, the United States can no longer keep its business system fluid by inflation. Whole industries have their backs to the wall.

The New York newspapers see no way to absorb the demands of the printers. The railroads, fighting off receiverships, are appalled at the idea of negotiating contracts designed to preserve feather-bedding conditions. And the new middle class of consumers is tired to death of the annual increase in the cost of living that has been generated by the familiar wage-price spiral of the Forties and Fifties.

Thus a new way of finding fluidity will inevitably be imposed on management and labor alike. The profit sharing—or "progress" sharing—union contract is the only possible way of satisfying labor and the consumer without saddling industry with fixed costs that in depression periods can kill off marginal companies like flies.

Harrisburg — Reporter's Notebook:

The Jacket Brigade — You could tell in more ways than one that the past week was "Farm Show Week" here in the Capital City, but perhaps one of the more interesting ways revolved around the amazing number of 4-H Club, FFA and FFA jackets appearing in the Main Capitol Building atop Capitol Hill in downtown Harrisburg.

The jacket-wearers were from the Farm Show "uptown" (some two miles from Capitol Hill) and interestingly were found to be worn by kids in three main classifications: (1) organized tour groups from a given school or district; (2) obviously "local-ized" groups smaller in nature gathered together on the spur of the moment by a group at the Farm Show; and (3) just plain individuals, and small "disorganized" groups of three, four or five kids who simply decided to visit Capitol Hill.

The latter two groups particularly intrigued Capitol guides, for as one guide put it: "These doggone kids came down here literally on their own; they just wanted to see for themselves without anyone forcing them to come. They behaved more like perfect ladies and gentlemen than some of the adults we've seen here at times but what is perhaps more important, the kids were genuinely interested. We'll go out of our way any day for youngsters like those!"

The Pennsylvania Story

Visitors For The Farm Show

By Mason Denison

The Second In History — When Pennsylvania's lawmakers during their reorganization session last week elected Edwin W. Tompkins director of the Legislature's Legislative Reference Bureau, they made a most unusual move few realized at the time.

Veteran lawmaker Tompkins (the served in the House of Representatives 16 years until his defeat in November) is only the second director in the more than half-century history of the Bureau to have had previous legislative experience.

This in itself is a rather curious fact for it would seem that such legislative experience would be almost a prerequisite — inasmuch as the Bureau is the "service" unit of the legislative branch and has the formidable task, among other things, of drafting bills for lawmakers. . . . The need for some one highly versed in legislative procedure would seem to be a prime requisition — but it obviously hasn't been in the past!

Of the nine directors the Bureau had prior to Tompkins (who incidentally hailed from little upstate Cameron County — population: around 700), the only one to have previous legislative experience was Herbert B. Cohen who served during 1941 and 1942 . . . (Whatever happened to one-time Bureau Director Cohen? He served as State Attorney General during the Leader Administration — and today is a State Supreme Court Justice.)

Incidentally, new Bureau Director Tompkins in addition to being a former lawmaker is also an attorney — an almost unbeatable combination for the critical but little-known post.

Free Gubernatorial "Plug" — In our column of December 31 we mentioned in passing that outgoing Democratic Governor David Lee Lawrence on January 15 would be holding his gubernatorial robes and heading back to Pittsburgh and his insurance business.

We never gave it another thought — until the other day when we received a letter from a reader of the Vandergriff News-Citizen asking us "what address" of Mr. Lawrence's business. . . . As we answered our western reader (singular!) the thought occurred that perhaps others would also be interested (in helping keep a retiring chief executive off the breadlines), so here are the answers: (1) the name of the business is Harris-Lawrence Co., Inc., Peoples Bank Bldg., 307 Fourth Avenue, Pittsburgh; (2) the type of insurance: fire and casualty.

Off The Record

By Bob Clark

If you take the word of three East Stroudsburg businessmen there are no better bargains outside the confines of Monroe County than those found in their borough.

These men, all well versed on the commercial ways of life, solidly cry that their establishments and those of their neighbors give Monroe's buying public the best buys for their dollar.

The East Stroudsburg business group came forward to protest a recent Off The Record column claiming Allentown, Bethlehem and Easton merchants are pilfering their customers with tab-thumping "steals" on the buying market.

The trio agreed that some of Monroe's Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public are invading the lower Lehigh Valley territory looking and oft-times buying merchandise as advertised none-lower. The East Stroudsburg threesome say this is hogwash. Almost in unison they shout, "There are no prices lower than those in East Stroudsburg."

Jack Bornbaum, a furniture dealer, noted that his store has advertised many times the statement that "no one can beat our prices."

The merchants from East Stroudsburg also claimed that of times customers from this area are getting fooled by advertisements. They claim a special low price on an article is advertised, but that only one or two of the "steals" are available to the hundreds who seek the plums.

"It's a gimmick to draw the public to the stores and discount houses," Jay Sleep, music store executive offered.

East Stroudsburg's businessmen are going all out to promote the borough's commercial activities.

"We're not bumps on a log over here. We have aims that are designed to give better service and top merchandise for the lowest dollar," they asserted.

The businessmen feel that persons shopping out of the county are actually paying more for their goodies. One individual said, "You can't run a car for less than 10 cents a mile. So figure it out. When people drive to Allentown they motor 38 miles one-way, multiply this by two and you get 76 miles. Multiply again and you have $7.60 per round trip."

He then asked, "Do you save money by this venture?"

Maybe the businessmen on the other side of the Broadhead have the answer — Shop At Home And Save.

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington, Jan. 11: — Russia has an amazingly clearcut idea of the Kennedy Administration's most secret defense plans.

A Soviet military document prepared under the direction of Marshal V. D. Sokolovsky, translations of which are now in the possession of the Air Force and the Senate Armed Services Committee, pointedly detail this breach of security.

Titled "Military Strategy," the 618-page Russian document gives specific details of Defense Secretary McNamara's plans for drastically cutting back the Strategic Air Command's nuclear bomber force by 1966.

It accurately lists secret data on U. S. military satellites, their missions, and the number of launches planned for the next 15 years.

Where or how Soviet officials were able to obtain this classified information is a major mystery. The fact that the Russians did get it could touch off an inquiry even more explosive than the Senate Armed Services Committee's forthcoming Skybolt hearings.

Shocked by what they have read in the document, several members of the committee are planning to grill Secretary McNamara and other top Defense officials when they brief the senators on U. S. — Soviet military capabilities later this month.

The Allen-Scott Report

Secret U. S. Military Data Detailed In Red Document

The committee, headed by Chairman Richard Russell, D-Ga., will seek to determine (1) where the Russians could have obtained this information, and (2) the accuracy of the U. S. military plans reported in the document but about which the senators have never been fully apprized by Defense Department officials.

For example: While committee members have been told there would be a cutback of strategic bombers in the future, they were never given the specific details contained in the Soviet document, which states:

"The Americans plan a gradual but considerable reduction in the number of strategic bombers. This force will be reduced from 1,500 in 1962 to 900 by 1966. They plan to use B-49s exclusively as a medium strategic bomber by the end of 1965 and to retire all of the B-47s by then."

"By early 1962, the U. S. had 700 B-52s and 1,100 B-47s, and 60 super sonic B-58s. All of the B-52s and 900 of the medium strategic bombers are located on U. S. territory; the remaining medium bombers are based in Europe and the Pacific."

The Russian document, which goes into minute details of the combat readiness of these strategic bombers, also reveals that "within the near future the Americans plan to have all 700 Hound Dog missiles with nuclear warheads of ranges of 800 kilometers."

Other secrets — The details on the proposed U. S. military satellite launches shocked the senators even more than those of the bombers.

The document contains charts of the proposed launches and outlines U. S. plans to orbit a total of 600 military satellites between now and 1975.

Included in these launches, none of which will be announced by the U. S., will be 117 Samos reconnaissance satellites, 123 Midas missile-warning satellites, 72 Bambi satellites designed to destroy ballistic missiles while still in their launching pads, and 24 Dyna-Soar military space vehicles.

Other launches forecast are 114 Transit radio navigation aids, 26 Advent and 85 Rebound military communications satellites, 86 Saint anti-satellite satellites, 24 Anna communication directional satellites, and 46 military weather satellites.

The Soviet document clearly indicates the Russians have known for some time that the Samos satellite is being used for radio surveillance of Russia as well as taking pictures of its military installations.

It states that the U. S. will launch 49 Samos satellites by the end of 1963. So far, the U. S. has announced only one of these launches and has never officially admitted the Samos has equipment that can intercept Soviet ground communications.

One intriguing item in the document which has attracted the attention of the committee members is that the Defense Department plans to spend $120 billion on military space-missile developments from now through 1975. It states:

"The U. S. Air Force controls the development, research and testing of almost all types of space systems designed for reconnaissance warning, radio navigation, communications, and defense against enemy missiles and enemy satellites, as well as those to be used to strike against enemy strategic ground targets."

"It is planned to allocate to this service in 1962 - 1975 $120 billion for the development of new types of space, ballistic and electronic systems, as well as new types of aerospace vehicles."

Note: This military document — additional details of which will be revealed in future columns — is being distributed throughout the Russian military services to show a comparison of U. S. — Soviet military strength and strategy.

Social Whirl — Captain Peter Townsend, whose unswerving romance with Princess Margaret made world headlines some year ago, is coming to Washington early in February, and already ambitious hostesses are trying to snag him. Townsend will visit the capital as a wine salesman, but that's having no effect on his social eligibility. He's in great demand for parties of all kinds. . . . General Lauris Norstad, who retired recently as NATO commander, is finding his departure more strenuous than running his former job. After a long round of farewell parties in Paris, Norstad now faces a social program almost as arduous in Washington. At least a half dozen big farewell banquets are lined up for him, plus a number of other events. . . . Mrs. Pele Mesta, noted "hostess with the mostest," can be depended on to spring a novelty at her parties. At a luncheon for a number of debutantes, she staged what she called "choral singing." Among the songs she and her guests warbled were "Call Me Madame," "I Could Have Danced All Night," and "Melancholy Baby."

Inside You And Yours

The Oldster's Chickenpox

By Burton H. Fern, M. D.

What is shingles? Does it really kill when it spirals around both sides and meets in front?

Shingles (herpes zoster) is a virus infection like polio. Polio attacks muscles stimulating nerve cells; shingles infects pain-carrying nerves.

Shingles and chickenpox viruses are cut from the same mold. Experts can't tell them apart. Both ailments are probably caused by the same germ.

First, you catch chickenpox. If you had chickenpox years before — and your immunity is wearing thin — you come down with shingles. Older men are especially vulnerable.

You may have caught the virus months or years before. It often lurks undetected until leukemia, TB or something else lowers resistance.

Flu-Like Start

Shingles begins like a mild flu. It leaves you weak and woozy, shaking and shivering with fever. Your stomach rumbles uneasily and may erupt. Pain spreads around to the front along every branch of the infected nerve. Then a warm flush breaks out, followed by crops of blisters that overhang each other like shingles on a house.

Without treatment, the blisters soon dry up and scale off, leaving you immune.

Cortisone medicines melt the inflammation to speed pain relief. Cooling zinc oxide soothes smarting blisters. Aspirin and codeine help, too.

Pain may linger years after shingles heals — especially if you're over 50.

Helpful Measures

Nerve — Protecting vitamin shots, nerve-destroying snake venom, penetrating X-rays and soothing electric vibrators sometimes help. So do freezing sprays which you apply at home.

Your doctor may have to inject nerve-cumulating Novocain R or alcohol. The surgeon can sever pain-carrying nerve fibers.

Like A Girdle

Shingles sometimes spreads around both sides to girdle your chest or abdomen.

In this girdle trap! "Course it isn't! When the rash and pain fade, you're as good as new!"

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible as a guide when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Fern in care of this newspaper.

Dear Abby

Don't Count Your Chickens

DEAR ABBY: If I buy one of those Senior Citizens Homes for retired old folks and the woman who has been my darling wife for 44 years drops dead on the golf course because she's not used to all that exercise, and then I marry a cute young chick and we have two or three kiddies, what should I do? They don't allow children at the Senior Citizens Homes for retired folks.

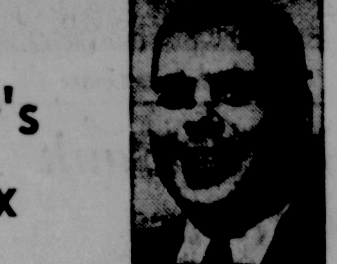

LOOKING AHEAD

DEAR LOOKING: Don't count your chickens before they're hatched. I'll help you solve that problem when the time comes.

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 and my problem has to do with my mother. I have an older sister and a younger brother. My mother favors my sister because she's the oldest, and she favors my brother because he is the youngest. That leaves me in the middle. I have really tried hard to be nice to my mother but it never turns out right. We just don't seem to get along. What can I do?

MIDDLE CHILD

DEAR MIDDLE CHILD: No matter what position you play in the family game, you see only the drawbacks. The oldest complains that when a fight occurs, it's her fault because she should have known better. The youngest complains because he has to go to bed earlier and can't do what the older kids can do. Frankly, I think you've got the best spot. Just try harder.

Taxpayer May Get U.S. Bonds Refund

TAXPAYERS were reminded yesterday of the new plan allowing them to take their tax refunds in United States Savings Bonds, by Ellis R. Rogers, District Director of the Internal Revenue Service, Scranton.

Beginning with the 1962 Individual Income Tax Return, eligible taxpayers will be given the opportunity of taking their refunds in Series E Savings Bonds, in addition to the standard options of cash or applying the refund to next year's tax. When Savings Bonds are chosen, the smallest possible number of the highest denomination bonds will be issued, along with a check to cover any remaining balance of a dollar or more.

The idea of allowing a taxpayer to choose between Savings Bonds or a check is not new. Taxpayers have been recommending it for years. What enabled the Treasury to offer it with the 1962 returns was the recent installation of high-speed data processing equipment to handle tax returns. The Treasury also conducted a survey of taxpayers to determine their interest in a Savings Bonds refund. A significant number of those questioned said they would take their tax refunds in Series E Bonds if given the option.

Last year, approximately five billion dollars in refunds were returned to American taxpayers. Sales of Savings Bonds could thus be swelled by many millions of dollars in the next few months, thus putting more of the public debt into the hands of small savers.

The tax forms — 1040 (long) and 1040A (short) — have been changed to provide an extra space in which taxpayers may elect U.S. Savings Bonds for their refunds. Information on the option also appears in the instructions for both of these forms.

The House Of The Week

Rear Staircase Solves Bi-Level Problem

By JULES LOH

EVER since bi-level construction made its appearance, architects have been struggling with a vexing problem which seemed, until now, inherent in the new design technique.

In effect, this type home is a one-story house raised out of the ground so the basement gets plenty of natural light and air and becomes habitable.

The front door is placed midway between the two levels, and passage from one floor to another always seemed inconvenient at best.

In today's House of the Week, J-55 in the series, architect Herman H. York has solved the problem nicely by including a second interior stairway leading from the kitchen area to the lower level recreation room — precisely the point of most traffic between floors.

As an added feature, he has designed into the stair a platform which leads directly to the exterior at the rear. This provides not only an excellent service entry, but also direct access from the back-yard play area to the recreation room and the lower level bathroom.

Still, the main attraction of this and any other bi-level is its enormous amount of living area in relation to the small amount of ground it covers. One builder has estimated it would cost half again as much to give a conventional ranch the same amount of living area as a bi-level provides — not to mention the added land cost.

This house contains four bedrooms and two full baths on the main level, plus the living room, dining room, kitchen and denette. Downstairs is a fifth bedroom and full bath for a maid or guests, or an apartment for in-laws; a den or hobby room, huge recreation room, laundry, garage and storage area.

All this living space is within over — all dimensions of 54 feet wide by 43 feet nine inches deep, which means in most communities it would fit on a 75-foot lot. The upper level contains 1,998 square feet and the lower level — the bonus living space in this type construction — contains 1,481 square feet of living area not counting the 390-square-foot garage.

Additional Details

Taking over the entire basement for living area and garage has produced another problem for bi-level home owners — lack of storage space.

Plainly that can't be said about this house.

Architect York has designed three large storage areas on the lower level, about the same amount of space you'd get in any house where part of the cellar is used for recreation.

Upstairs storage also is plentiful. All the bedrooms have large closets, especially the master bedroom. There's a wide linen closet near the main bathroom, and two coat closets — one in the mid-level foyer and one in the main-level gallery.

The living room-dining room ell constitutes a massive formal area neatly separated from the informal kitchen-dinette area. A bay window and foyer railing add interest in the living room, and are complemented by a planter and similar railings in the dining room.

The kitchen is a model of efficiency and is centrally located between front door and rear service entry. The dinette overlooks the rear terrace through double windows which provide fine supervision from the kitchen as well.

Downstairs, the recreation room features a built-in bar at the rear wall and a corner fireplace diagonally opposite. This is excellent balance of focal points, which a large room requires.

Incidentally, York has this to say about the location of the fireplace: "If it is to be used, it belongs in the family room. If it is chiefly a part of an interior decorating scheme, but rarely used, put it in the living room."

This fireplace, apparently, was intended to be used.

J-55 STATISTICS

A four or five-bedroom bi-level containing 1,998 square feet on the upper level and 1,481 square feet on the lower level not counting the 390-square-foot garage. Over-all dimensions are 54 feet wide by 43 feet nine inches deep.

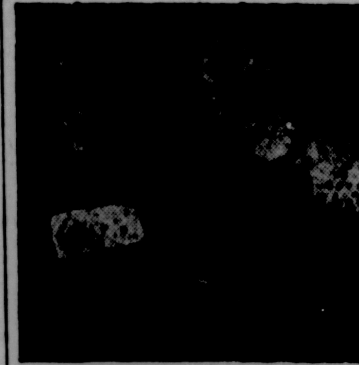

FLOOR PLANS: Upper level contains 1,998 square feet and the lower level contains 1,481 square feet of living area not counting the 390-square-foot garage. Note the abundance of storage space on the lower level and the ample closet space on the upper level.

Visualize Project First Then Modernize Later

"VISUALIZE before you modernize," suggests John Conrad, housing expert for Moscorite Corporation. Sometimes difficult for home owners, visualizing is made simple when they obtain design counsel from a qualified lumber and building materials dealer, he said.

Over 1,500 Design - Service - Counsel (D.S.C.) dealers have been named by Moscorite Corporation to give this helpful kind of service to many families who want to upgrade their homes.

Especially qualified to help with remodeling and additions — D.S.C. dealers take customers' wishes and have a national design service translate them into renderings so they can visualize their plans. Home owners report satisfaction with this complete, one-stop service.

Company 'A' Men Set For Inauguration

A COMPOSITE battalion of the First Battle Group, 10th Infantry, 28th Division, Pennsylvania National Guard, will participate in the inaugural parade honoring Gov.-elect William Scranton, Tuesday at 2 p.m. in Harrisburg.

Tentative plans call for members of units from East Stroudsburg, Scranton, Carbondale, Honesdale and Pittston to leave from local armories at 8 a.m. on Tuesday. They will travel to Indianopolis Gap Military Reservation by private bus and then on to Harrisburg in an Army convoy.

This is the first time in the history of the 10th Infantry that its troops have been invited to march in an inaugural review.

Col. John J. Remetta, group commander, last night named Lt. Col. Coleman J. Nee, group deputy, to co-ordinate the planning and movement.

Health Units' Chiefs Named

HARRISBURG (AP) — Administrative heads of three major new bureaus created in the Health Department under a reorganization program were appointed yesterday by Health Secretary Charles L. Wilbur.

The reorganization was based on recommendations of a study of Pennsylvania Health Services made by Johns Hopkins University.

Wilbur himself has been re-appointed health secretary in the incoming Republican cabinet of Gov.-elect William W. Scranton.

Those named to fill the new posts in his department were:

Dr. Albert L. Chapman, Washington, D. C., director of planning, evaluation and research, at a salary of $17,839 a year, effective Wednesday.

Dr. Charles L. Leedham, Cleveland, Ohio, director of educational activities, $16,978 a year, effective Wednesday.

Dr. Albert E. Bailey, Harrisburg director of administration and management, $13,301 a year, effective Jan. 23.

The 'Off-Board' Market

By William A. Doyle

Q. You were off base in the column in which you wrote that some brokers buy and sell stocks for their customers at a small flat commission charge, rather than the New York Stock Exchange commission rates — if you mean that stock exchange member firms would do that.

I checked with five brokerage firms who are members of the stock exchange. They state, unanimously, that it would be a violation of the New York Stock Exchange minimum commission rules to do such a thing.

In my opinion, you have done a disservice to the investing public and brokers by publishing such information. Will you either clarify your information and quote your source or retract what you wrote?

A. Sometimes I wonder if people really read. That column about which you are so charged up has drawn a lot of mail. Most of the letters evidently come from people who did not read the column.

That column did not (repeat, NOT) state that brokerage firms which are members of a stock exchange will handle transactions in stocks listed on that stock exchange at any charge lower than the minimum commission rates set by the exchange.

As has been explained here before, that would be a violation of stock exchange rules. And any brokerage firm which is a member of a stock exchange must abide by the rules of the exchange.

That column did state it is possible to buy and sell stock other than through the mechanics of a stock exchange — even though the stock is traded on a stock exchange.

It explained that this is done in the so-called "off-board market" through brokers and dealers who are not members of any stock exchange.

It is also explained that, in most cases, the commission charges to customers are the same as they would be if the stock were bought or sold on a stock exchange. But some brokers do charge lower commissions for such off-board transactions. And some charge higher commissions and fees.

That should be clarification enough for you. If you don't believe me, go ask those five brokers again. If they know their business, they will agree that every word written here is correct. There's no need for a retraction.

You ask for a "source" of this information. It's public knowledge. It's no secret.

A number of people wrote in asking for the names of brokers who charge low commission rates. As stated in the previous column, I must refuse to provide such information. I cannot be put in the position of naming individual brokerage firms. That would be most unethical.

Again I want to stress that each investor should deal with whatever broker provides the service that investor requires. The stock exchange commission rates enable most brokerage firms to provide good services to their customers — in the form of research, investment advice, etc.

If you look for a broker with low commission rates, you shouldn't expect much in the way of those services.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

Hepatitis Cases Drop In State

HARRISBURG (AP)—There was a marked drop last year in the incidence of infectious hepatitis (jaundice), the state Health Department reported yesterday.

Total cases in 1962 of 2,536 compared with 3,230 in the peak year of 1961, a department spokesman said.

The spokesman said hepatitis is a cyclical disease, showing fluctuations over a five-year period. The most recent low year was 1957, when 522 cases were reported.

The incidence in Pennsylvania per 100,000 persons is very nearly the same as that for the United States as a whole, the department reported.

Commenting on a recent outbreak of hepatitis at the Seaside State School, the spokesman said the situation "is under control."

3 Indicted By Wayne Grand Jury

THE Wayne County January grand jury recently returned three true bills and completed its work in a five-hour session.

Two persons, Milford and Marion Patten, were indicted for making false statements in obtaining assistance, and Friend W. Enslin was indicted for contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Prosecutor in the Patten case was Harold Ulrich, Public Assistant director for Northeastern Pennsylvania. Trooper Joseph Chinchur was the prosecutor in the Enslin case.

In other action, Joseph H. Oliver entered a plea of guilty on charges of failing to stop at the scene of an accident and hit-and-run.

Judge James Rutherford fined Oliver $100 on the failure to stop at the scene of an accident and suspended sentence on the hit-and-run charge, upon payment of costs.

Explorers Of Area Council To Meet Pole Visitor

EXPLORERS of the Delaware Valley Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, will have the opportunity to meet informally with Dr. Paul Siple, at the Hotel Easton at 3:30 p.m. on Saturday, January 12.

Scout Executive, Elmer Morgan, stated that Paul Siple, who was considered the foremost Boy Scout, when he was selected to accompany Admiral Byrd to the South Pole in 1926, today — is considered the world's foremost Scientist relating to Arctic and Antarctic matters.

Each Explorer Post in the Council may send representatives to the informal meeting.

Construction Costs May Jump

NEW YORK (AP)—Booms in the cost of skilled labor, among other things, may mean that construction costs will rise faster in 1963 than they did in 1962, says Engineering News-Record.

The publication estimates that the construction cost index will rise 3.4 per cent during 1963. Materials, except for some lumber items, are expected to remain fairly steady.

Chic New Spring Creations Place Accent On The Feminine Figure

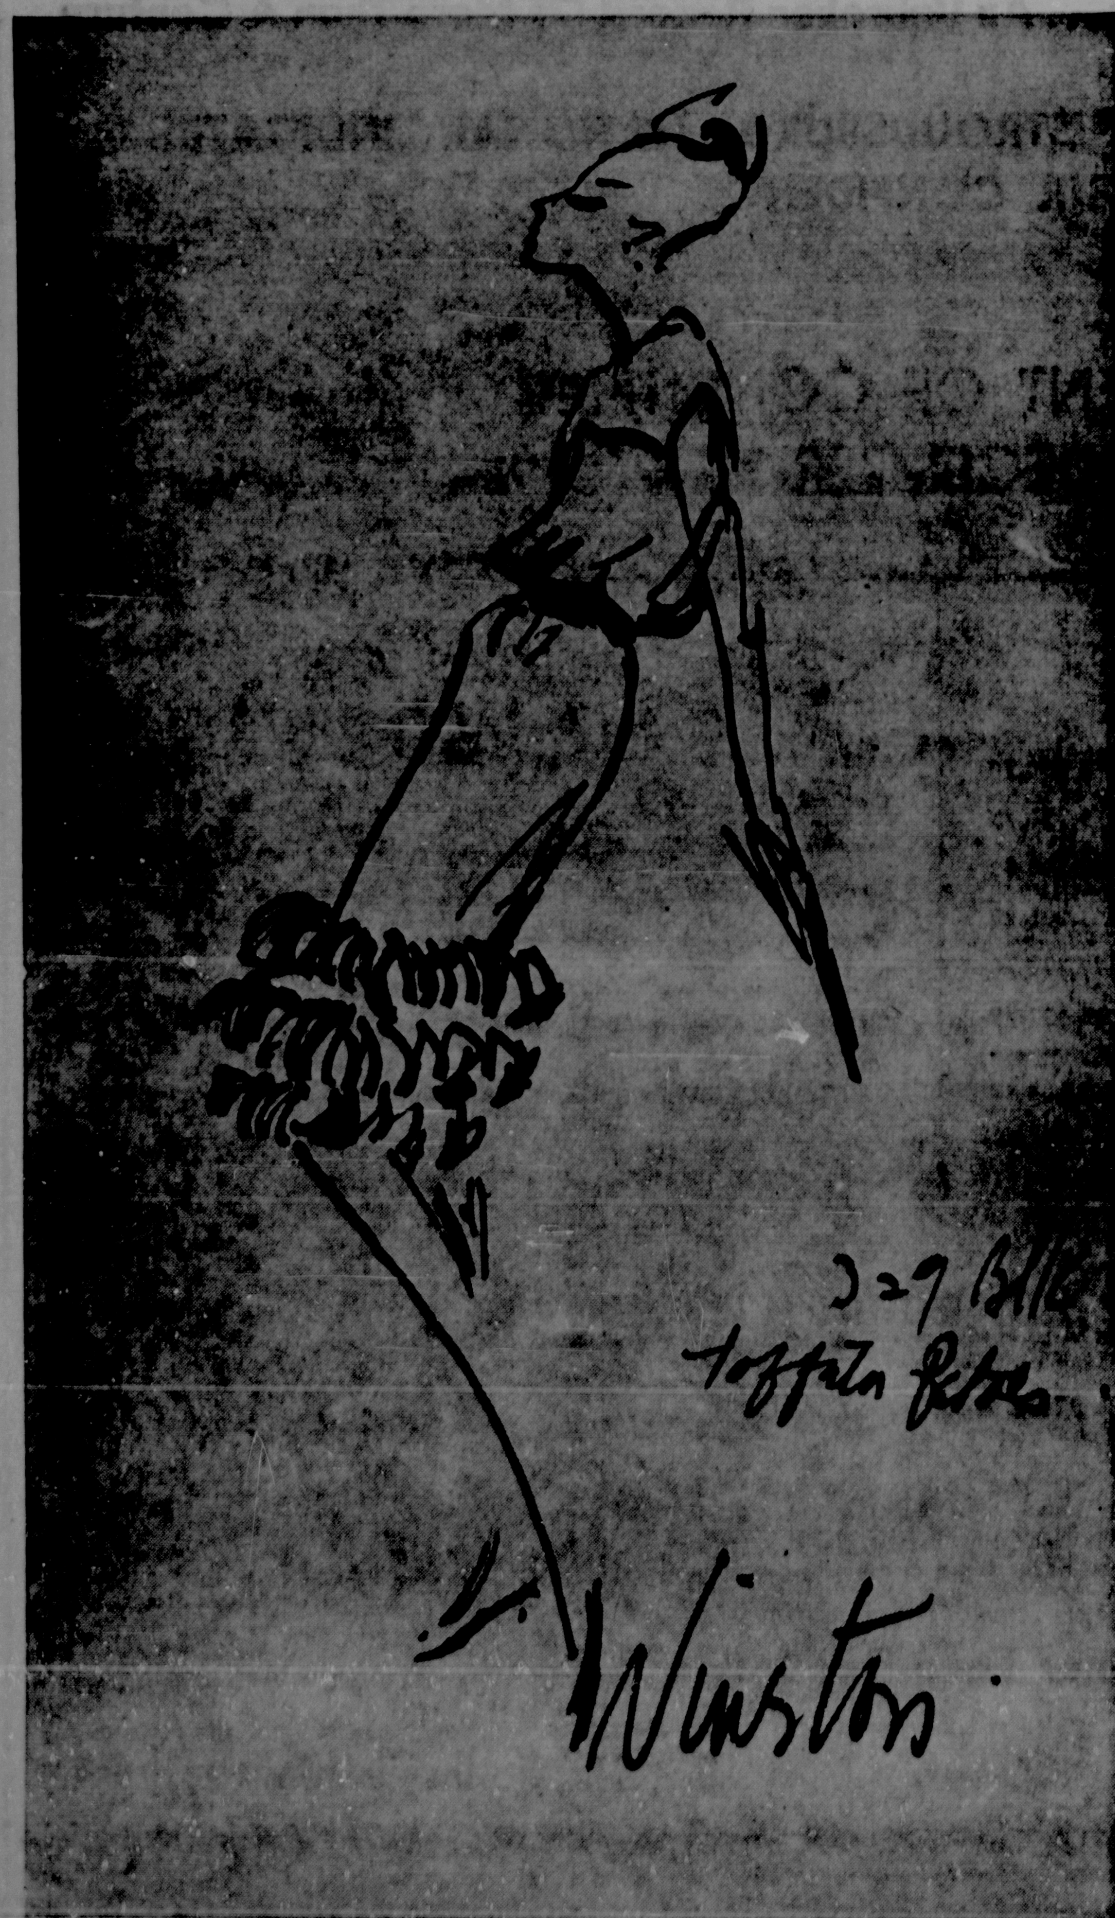

ORIGINALA'S SPRING 1963 FOUR-POCKET COAT, silver-belted in leather, designed in putty-colored lightweight fleece. The collar, like many in the collection, stands away. (Emme hat, Monet jewelry)

JUNIOR SOPHISTICATES' pink wool tweed walking suit with a long shirt-like jacket—designed by Anne Klein for Spring 1963. The jacket, showing an ivory crepe overblouse, has deep patch pockets and cuffed sleeves.

THE COSTUMED LOOK FOR SPRING in a juniper green soft wool longer jacket suit with paler green silk overblouse—from the Harvey Berin Spring 1963 collection, designed by Karen Stark. The overblouse is flat-terly tied at the neckline with a soft bow.

By Bobby Westbrook

Daily Record Family Fare Editor

NEW YORK — "Leave it to the Girls"—and Maggi McNellis turned fashion commentator, filling in with the greatest of ease when the regular commentator was late for the opening show of the second full day of National Press Week sponsored by the New York Couture Group. The fashion press, however, was still humming "We're Barry's Boys"—the Goldwater lampoon from the enchanting Plaza Nine show which they'd all attended the night before.

Maggi and the panel from her television show were all there bright and early for the Samuel Winston showing and they've been wearing his dresses all week on TV.

Clothes Like A Fine Painting

The Winston show, as always, was an eye-opener. When Eleanor Lambert took over the microphone, she characterized the Winston clothes by Roxanne as the type women could wear for years and years and then turn over to a museum, like a fine painting. Tax deductible, maybe.

The collection emphasizes the somewhat molded outline without a tightened waistline. The suits in high colors often have blouses attached to the skirts. Roxanne also uses two prints in reversed colors or in twin prints of chiffon and silk crepe.

The famous coats of Originala demonstrated the wide variety available this season. The reefers trace the contours of the body, with an almost waist-high vent in the back which flickers with every line. This year's "Success" coat is a French jersey with deeper shades of satin down the front and edging the collars. In contrast, there was a gigantic plaid coat of brown, black and beige nipped in at the waist with a wide leather belt, and the skirt flaring wide and ripply.

Fitted Look On Way Back

Harvey Berin through his designer Karen Stark predicts that the fitted look is on the way back, but hedges her bets by designing clothes without that tightly fitted feeling. The Figurine Silhouette uses for its elongated shaping giant diamond-shaped bias cut sections which meet at a point at center front and back; the Montmartre silhouette, inspired by the French bohemian's work smock, follows the figure lightly, but features fullish French sleeves and slash pockets at the side seams. The Flamenco silhouette is gently slender from a very high waist to the thigh where it flares out in an ungathered bias flounce.

Like bird dogs faithfully pointing the legal game the mass production houses follow the high fashion trends. Don't turn up your noses at that "mass production" label. They're the kind of clothes the more affluent of the fashion editors and the upper middle bracket of their readers wear.

There's A Woman Underneath

Suzi Perette and her little sister, Jeunesse, who makes clothes for the 5 to 15 figure, gave a luncheon showing. $39.95, while not a good round number is a goodly sum to pay for clothes, and you do get high fashion trends. Overblouses cover everything from the casual day dress through the after-five glamour gowns, sliding from the natural waistline down to the longest tunic which stops short just above the hemline. As their commentator noted, the shift and the skimmer can be distinguished from the sack by the fact that you can tell there is a woman underneath. She also gave another important tip: don't judge clothes from the way they look on the rack. You're the one who makes the curves in the right places.

Junior Sophisticates is another down-to-earth adaption of high flying fashion and here the classic shirt and sweater look come into their own. In fact, many of the cardigan sweaters come all the way down to the hem to make a whole dress. In soft pink wool there's a shirt suit with a feminine version of a man's shirt with rounded collar, and French cuffs. The Pullover Dress is a straight, unfitted shift that comes in one or two pieces. There are also many jumpers in wool with long-sleeved crepe shirts.

LIGHT SHAPING AND SET-IN SLEEVES for Originala's Spring 1963 coat of nubby red wool tweed. Buttons are brass. (Stekch by Joe Eula)

Just Between Us —

But let's face it . . . fashion editors face the rat race of National Press note only for the fashion news, but also for the (payola is such a crude word)—emoluments, let's say, that accompany it. For the housewife contending with croupy children and exasperated husbands, rat race might seem a strong term for looking at pretty girls wearing pretty clothes—but when you do it from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. day after day it can get as dreary as dishpan hands.

Among the "emoluments" you can definitely count the entertainment. Outside of "How to Succeed" last winter, the definite highlight for many a reason was the Plaza Nine revue—both of them, incidentally, put on by Ship 'n Shore. We loved it! In the decorous Plaza Hotel there's a fast-paced, endearing, and fill-in-your-own superlatives, night club revue—young, fresh, topical and really funny.

As new and topical as the confusion caused by the new postal rates, the Cholesterol Love Song for the polyunsaturated man, the bagpipe harmony for the collectors of the plaid-plaid stamps, that is. There was a hilarious take-off on the Tennessee Williams play, the suburban matrons March on Washington in the rain, and the Senate Committee investigating TV. Most popular, of course, were the political lampoons with "Barry's Boys," seen recently on TV, as the very funniest, but Richard Nixon didn't escape nor Miss Porter's school trying to revise its curriculum so that "Caroline will feel at home."

There were half-sad scenes: The school prayer which in view of the Bible-reading, prayer controversy was addressed "to whom it may concern" and the "Requiem for Everyone" which in the "Flight for Peace" ended up with a "Rest in Peace" dirge. Also remembered from TV was the inventor of the Thor who flapped, and which gave the "Thip and Thore" take-off for its showing of blouses the same hilarious, quick paced quality. "Ten Per Cent Banton" was another natural.

Board Inspects Heating, Roof At Meeting

Portland — The Official Board of the Portland Methodist Church met Tuesday night in the church. Rev. Poorstra presided and gave the prayer.

The heating system was discussed for the social room and the Sunday School room.

The Board of Trustees, met recently to check the heating in the Sunday School room and found that the oil burner being now in use is condemned. They decided to extend the heat from the large furnace that heats the auditorium into the Sunday school room with automatic thermostat control so that both auditorium and Sunday school room can be heated at the same time.

Russell Strunk, president of the board of trustees, explained the system, after which the Official Board passed on having the work done. Charles Pysker of Mount Bethel was selected to do the work.

A contribution was given to the Official Board by Walter Ervey and sister Miss Ruth Ervey in memory of their father Nicholas Ervey, which is to go towards the heating of the social room.

The board also passed to have the slates replaced on the roof of the church which were blown off by the recent hard wind.

There were fourteen members present at the meeting.

Rev. Markin Describes Humor For Junior Women

Rev. Luther Markin was featured speaker at the Tuesday meeting of the Stroudsburg Junior Women's Club.

His topic, "The Original Humorist," stressed that the original humorist is God. He said laughter and smiles are a part of one's life, to balance the grief and sorrow of life.

Rev. Markin pointed out the difference between smiling at someone and smiling with a person. He said one can always find fun and laughter if they try.

During the business session, the club decided to donate to the "Meals for Millions" program which is a relief and starvation prevention program.

A report was given on the success of the annual Christmas dance held at the Penn-Stroud Hotel. The proceeds benefited the children of the Children's Aid Society.

The next major project to be sponsored by the club will be a spaghetti supper Feb. 9 in the Stroud Township Municipal Building. Tickets were distributed to each member.

A fashion show is planned to be held March 20 at the East Stroudsburg State College dining hall.

Lauds Merchants For Cooperation On Local Level

Cooperation between local merchants and the Monroe County Home Economy extension agency was lauded yesterday in the annual report prepared by Margaret MacLaren, Monroe County extension home economist.

She pointed out the relationship between the 4-H and sewing courses in the 10 to 13 age group and the expansion of the available merchandise in both quality and quantity.

The primary objective of the program is to teach people the value of developing creative skills and crafts as a valuable use of leisure. In line with this, groups have been organized in ceramic tile work, copper tooling, chair caning and requests for assistance in millinery have been received from five areas in the county.

Another objective of the 4-H and home economist's program has been to develop and promote a stronger youth program by training leaders on the community level and teach homemaking skills to the pre-teens and young teen-age girls in the county.

Mrs. MacLaren said that the turnover is rapid, but that this did not weaken the overall program. She referred to the practice of girls going to work soon after the 14th birthday, leaving a program at a time when leadership would become more direct.

The result of the 4-H season has brought comments which congratulated the agent's office for the work done and that girls were receiving a "head-start" on their home economics classes in school.

K. Beers Speaks To Rep. Women

King Beers of the Redevelopment Office spoke at the recent meeting of the Monroe County Council of Republican Women. He stressed the fact that new roads will shorten the distance to New York City to 68 miles. This, he said, makes the Poconos desirable for living, recreation and business.

Beers explained that the plans must be presented to the Federal Government by Feb. 1 and so are rushed. The people living in the Lincoln Ave. section must be canvassed as to their needs for relocation and housing must be listed.

In addition, Beers said, the area must be analyzed for re-use and industries must be sought, as possible buyers. He said seven companies have shown interest in locating in the section.

The advantages of the project, according to Beers, will be aid to employment, keep young people in the area and transplant people from a substandard area.

R. J. Schmidt, consultant of Candub, Cabot and Associates of Scranton, explained the interest of the government in the project. Mrs. Clarence Rutt, corresponding secretary, read a letter from the new state president, Mrs. Agnes Velch, stressing the opportunity to work for the good of the state.

Mrs. Alexander Koorbanoff accepted chairmanship of the friendship committee.

Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis appealed to the members to aid in volunteering for the March of Dimes.

Mrs. Edward Kenney introduced the speakers.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Rutt and her committee, Mrs. Edgar Powell, Mrs. Clarence Dupee, Mrs. Kenney and Mrs. Vernon Eilenberger.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

One of the most prized "fringe benefits" of my position at Wyckoff's is the privilege of attending many highly interesting events in which I would not otherwise be included... such events as this past Tuesday evening's dinner of the Monroe County Council of Churchwomen at the Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Claude Lester is president, and I always enjoy the manner in which she presides. Her method is a delightful blend of informality and formality, and seems utterly effortless!

I will remember many things about this meeting—the excellent meat loaf... the women, flatteringly lighted by candles, singing "Faith of Our Fathers" with Dottie Dunn (of our Wyckoff switchboard) as leader... the large painting of Madonna and child, casting its own majestic glow from the walls of the Sunday School room... the prayer offered by Mrs. Roger Stimson as she installed the officers... but perhaps most of all the excellent talk given by Mrs. Walter Reives who conducted devotions. It was such a down to earth message, so appropriate to offer a group of women who are accustomed to shopping super markets.

Mrs. Reives spoke of faith... the kind of faith that is a real armor against the worries, frustrations, and problems of today's world. There is one type of faith that is somewhat superficial, she pointed out, and casts a light that creates a reflection when it falls on other things, much like the reflection created when the headlights of a car shine on the reflector of a car ahead. This has just one drawback, however. When one's own light falters and goes out, the reflection also disappears. But the light of real faith does not go out. It is similar to the ray that opens the doors of a super market. When one has such faith, doors automatically swing open; the way is pointed out to one. And just as one may leave a super market laden abundantly, or may walk away empty handed, so it is with faith. Everyone can take away as much as she likes, in accordance with her capacity.

The motion picture which followed was called "Burden of Truth." Filmed by United States steel workers, it projects the problems of the American negro today, raising the question of what the individual Christian plans to do about them. A challenging picture, it left more than a few of us aware of the need to put into action our feelings on the subject of integration. If "Burden of Truth" did nothing more, it made one wonder anew: what is a Christian? and—Do I dare, before God, say that I am a Christian?

John Grogan, back once again in our Wyckoff shoe department, is feeling fine and expecting busy days. A tremendous selection of our best shoes has been greatly reduced, I understand, and he tells me there are some excellent buys for the entire family in just about all sizes... Something new, and bright as a teen-ager's dream of tomorrow, is the collection of Avanti rugs being shown in our second Floor Covering department. These have a hand crafted look, and come in joyous shades of antique and new gold, tangerine, and orange, pillowy, tufted stripes being interspersed with narrow stripes of flat hocking. The ends are loop-fringed. If you like to be on top of a rainbow with your feet literally in the pot of gold, these rugs are only 3.98 and as cheery as sunshine... Buying an educator or a retiring co-worker a gift soon? With February just around the corner, we might suggest bookends that are an authentic reproduction of the seated Lincoln, by D. C. French, —the monument of Lincoln Memorial fame. These are of the finest brass and bronze, priced at $1.50 in our Wyckoff Gift department.

WITHOUT A DOUBT, one of the most enthusiastic groups of basketball partisans to visit this area during the past two months was a busload of Kutztown fans who came to East Stroudsburg to cheer their team on to victory against ESSC last Saturday.

Their leather lungs ably matched the roars and cheers of the Warrior followers—and they were staunchly supported by a small band, complete with drum and bugle.

Repeatedly throughout the contest the bugler trumpeted out the famed "Charge" notes which made the Los Angeles Dodger fans so famous with their cry—da-da-da-da-da... followed by the chant from the mob—"Charge!"

Unfortunately for the Kutztown Golden Bears, the bugler and their fans got through to them a bit too much.

For charge they did—and their charging resulted in a total of 26 fouls called against them, 10 more than were called against the Warriors of East Stroudsburg State College.

And, in the end, Coach Mort Hochheiser's lads were able to romp off the floor 75-65 victors, thanks to their fabulous shooting percentage from the foul mark—27 to 37. Kutztown outscored the Warriors on field goals by a 27-23 margin, but the fact they had only 18 chances at the foul line—and connected on only 11—proved their downfall.

But it was nonetheless interesting to witness such spirit and following of a basketball team. The gymnasium that evening sounded more like a football field—and seldom can a basketball game anywhere be compared to the shouts and noise of bands and overall athletic atmosphere which features a football game anywhere.

Yes, it was only a busload of followers which came to East Stroudsburg that night. But they either must have traveled on the biggest bus in the world or else they came with specially-equipped lugs to register their shouts and cheers for the Golden Bears.

It was truly a fascinating exhibition of a wonderfully strong following for a small college basketball team. And the fact that the gym was filled to capacity that night, by the same token, is also a tribute to the ESSC fans. Of course, they did not have to travel—but as is so often the case, particularly on small college campuses, they did not have to attend the game either.

Saturday nights on almost any campus across the country is the night to take out your girl "on the town."

Undoubtedly, there were many dates that night, anyway. But putting first things first, the boys took the girls to the game before enjoying a couple of leisurely hours together afterward.

Yates Like A QB For Bearcats

AFTER the University of Cincinnati won its first NCAA basketball championship in Ed Jucker's freshman season as a coach there appeared in the 1961-62 Bearcat brochure a note on Tony Yates.

"A smooth and steady performer as a sophomore, Yates should retain his backcourt post on the first unit," said the note. Further along the basketball booklet was this background on Yates:

Underrated
"Unquestionably the most underrated player in America, and without equal on defense, according to Jucker."

Yates now has a chance to become one of the few college players who ever played on three NCAA championship teams in a row. All Cincinnati has to do is win its third straight NCAA title.

Yates is a 175-pound 6-foot-1 guard from Cincinnati. He doesn't score many points but he plays defense better than most men.

"Too much emphasis is placed on scoring averages," says Jucker. "As a result a fine player like Yates doesn't get one tenth of the credit he really deserves."

No Secret
"There's no secret to the defensive job he always gives us. Tony just plays his man nose-to-nose and never eases up. He's not exceptionally fast but he reacts well and can anticipate an opponent's move. He's what coaches call a 'heady' player and that's the kind we love to have around."

Yates averaged only 30 minutes playing time a game as a sophomore two seasons ago but since midway of last season, Jucker calls Yates his man "nose-to-nose" and never eases up. He's not exceptionally fast but he reacts well and can anticipate an opponent's move. He's what coaches call a 'heady' player and that's the kind we love to have around."

When Cincinnati first upset Ohio State, 70-65, in the spring of 1961 for its first of two thrilling finals against the Buckeyes, it was Yates who sank three straight fouls to seal Ohio State's doom.

Old For College
At 25, Yates is old as college players go. Had it not been for the GI bill he might not be in college today.

After graduation from Lockland Wayne High in Cincinnati, Yates entered the Air Force. He spent almost all of his four years at Ellsworth Air Force Base, S. D. He played basketball there.

After his discharge in 1959 Tony headed for Cincinnati. George Smith, then head basketball coach and now athletic director, explained that because of his age Yates was a great risk as far as an athletic grant-in-aid was concerned.

On His Own
Yates was on his own as a freshman. However, Smith gave him hope of a full athletic grant if he proved he could play basketball. He proved it. He was the playmaker for a freshman team that compiled a 14-1 record.

In 1962 he led the National League for the second straight year in walks with 101. His 399 home runs place him No. 3 in the National League, behind Mel Ott and Stan Musial, and he also is No. 3 among active players, behind Mickey Vernon and Musial.

During his 10 years in Milwaukee, since the Braves moved from Boston, the left-handed third baseman has averaged 38 home runs and 102 runs batted in per season. Last year he hit 29 homers and had 90 RBI while his batting average dropped to .265, compared with his lifetime average of .282. But he came to terms without difficulty with president John McHale.

Yates averaged only 30 minutes playing time a game as a sophomore two seasons ago but since midway of last season, Jucker calls Yates his man "nose-to-nose" and never eases up. He's not exceptionally fast but he reacts well and can anticipate an opponent's move. He's what coaches call a 'heady' player and that's the kind we love to have around."

Ends Silence

Brown Says He's On Shelf

CLEVELAND (AP) — "I'm on the shelf now... a vice president in charge of I-don't-know-what."

So said Paul Brown Thursday, ending his silence after the startling announcement that he had been removed as head coach and general manager of the Cleveland Browns.

Model said Wednesday that Brown would remain with the club as a vice president and would take on other duties, not specified. Brown had agreed to serve out the six years remaining on his contract at the same pay, believed to be in excess of $50,000 a year, and would retain his small stock share in the club, Modell said.

As fans continued to talk about the sudden removal and speculate about a successor to the "master," proud Paul Brown told interviewers:

"Part Of Game"

"I know this happens to other people, but I never thought of it in my own regard. It's all part of the game, though... Art Modell had a legal right to do what he did. It did come as a shock and surprise to me, however."

Brown said he had no plans now other than to fulfill his contractual obligations to the club.

"I'm under contract for six more years," Brown said. "I can't take another job without breaching the contract... My life is coaching—this has been my life, next to my family."

Admits Split
Asked about reports of friction between him and Modell, Brown did not mention any specific incidents, but said the split came because the president wanted to "take a more active part in the actual team aspects formerly assigned to me as part of my contract."

Brown said Modell told him of the decision Monday afternoon. The two then met with lawyers Wednesday morning to work out details.

Modell, who bought the club for $4 million in March, 1961, and immediately began moving into the areas Brown once ruled with an iron hand, said he expected to name a successor in 10 days. The owner indicated the jobs of coach and general manager would be handled by two men.

Three of the players—Karras, Gordy and Walker—were named in a report made by Detroit Police Commissioner George Edwards to the Lions management and National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Links Three
The report linked the three players with known gamblers but no criminal actions were discovered in the associations.

Ford said Wednesday it had been his understanding that Rozelle was coming to Detroit early next week to take personal charge of the investigation.

In New York, however, Rozelle denied he planned to question the four players and said he did not have any plans to come to Detroit. Rozelle said only that the investigation was continuing and he will make a statement when it is concluded.

Ford said he was convinced all the Lions players were in the clear but he conceded some of them may have used "poor judgment."

McCord, a defensive end, was not mentioned by name in the report.

The Lions became involved in the football investigation when it was reported that the management was unhappy with Karras' partnership in a Detroit bar, where police said known gamblers congregated.

Walker entered the picture when it was learned he had loaned his car for several weeks to Jim Butts, a Karras' partner in the bar. Walker also admitted he knew several men Edwards identified as gamblers.

Ford said he was not sure how McCord's name was thrown into the investigation. He said, "McCord doesn't know either but he wants to take the lie detector test anyway."

Arthur B. Modell, 33-year-old club president who knocked the 54-year-old leader of the Browns out of the coaching picture for the first time since 1930, said he hoped Brown would continue to serve the Cleveland club.

Will Remain
Modell said Wednesday that Brown would remain with the club as a vice president and would take on other duties, not specified. Three Named In Report

Four Detroit Lion Players Offer To Take Lie Tests

DETROIT (UPI)—Four Detroit Lions players have volunteered to take lie detector tests to prove that acquaintanceship with known gamblers did not affect their play.

William Clay Ford, Lions president, said that Darris McCord, John Gordy, Alex Karras and Wayne Walker all volunteered to take the tests.

Three of the players—Karras, Gordy and Walker—were named in a report made by Detroit Police Commissioner George Edwards to the Lions management and National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Links Three
The report linked the three players with known gamblers but no criminal actions were discovered in the associations.

Ford said Wednesday it had been his understanding that Rozelle was coming to Detroit early next week to take personal charge of the investigation.

In New York, however, Rozelle denied he planned to question the four players and said he did not have any plans to come to Detroit. Rozelle said only that the investigation was continuing and he will make a statement when it is concluded.

Ford said he was convinced all the Lions players were in the clear but he conceded some of them may have used "poor judgment."

McCord, a defensive end, was not mentioned by name in the report.

The Lions became involved in the football investigation when it was reported that the management was unhappy with Karras' partnership in a Detroit bar, where police said known gamblers congregated.

Walker entered the picture when it was learned he had loaned his car for several weeks to Jim Butts, a Karras' partner in the bar. Walker also admitted he knew several men Edwards identified as gamblers.

Ford said he was not sure how McCord's name was thrown into the investigation. He said, "McCord doesn't know either but he wants to take the lie detector test anyway."

Slate Ice Trials At Lake Henry

The program will include inspection from 8 a.m. to noon practice from 9-11 a.m.; ice trials from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., and ice races from 1-3 p.m.

Trophies will be awarded following the events.

Persons desiring full details of the event are asked to contact Jack Spies at 476-0400 during the day, or WY 2-4802 evenings.

E-burg-Bangor Feature

Loop Tilts Highlight Scholastic Agenda

SIX GAMES are on the scholastic basketball schedule in the Pocono-State Belt area tonight, including two Lehigh-Northampton League battles and one Lehigh Valley loop clash.

The feature attraction this evening is the contest at Bangor where Coach Bill Pensyl's Slayers play host to invading East Stroudsburg.

Cardinals Idle
Pocono Mountain is idle tonight and doesn't put its six-game win streak on the line until next Tuesday when they meet Notre Dame.

The Slayers of Bangor, the most improved team in the area this season under the guidance of their new head coach, are currently riding on a four-game win streak while East Stroudsburg, despite their 4-5 mark, continue to look sharper and better each week.

This Lehigh-Northampton League battle looms as a tough contest for both parties as Bangor seeks to extend its winning streak to five while the Cavaliers hope to reach the .500 mark and also snap a three-game losing skid. Pocono Mountain put East Stroudsburg below the .500 mark for the first time this season.

Defending Champs
In another L-N hop meeting tonight, the Green Knights of Pen Argyl travel to Wilson Boro where Coach Frank Varl's crew takes on the defending champs of the northern division. The Warriors, on the strength of their height and rebounding and scoring prowess, were the pre-season favorites to repeat for the crown.

Pen Argyl has been having its problems while struggling through a 3-6 mark to date and also in the throes of a current five-game losing streak. Biggest problem with the Knights is their lack of height with only Roger Snyder and Charlie Gumb barely reaching the six-foot mark.

Coach Bob Wert takes his Stroud Union Mountaineers to Northampton this evening in a Lehigh Valley contest with hopes of staying above the .500 mark. The Mountaineers have won four of seven games thus far while holding down a 1-1 mark in league competition—a win over Whitehall and a loss to Slatington in their last outing.

The Mountaineers have shown a well-balanced scoring attack in their previous games but are without one individual scoring leader such as marks the case with East Stroudsburg's Jack Van Horn. But the likes of Ed Nevil, Glen Bisbing, Dave Pierson, and Henry Ray, along with their freshman star, Skippy Kintz, are capable of exploding on any given night.

Seek Wins
Two teams in non-league action also will be looking for their first win of the season tonight. Pleasant Valley's Bears, who are 0-6 for the season, entertain Nesquehoning, while the longest club in the area—the Royals of Pius X—travel to Phillipsburg High School in search of their first victory in eight games.

In other action, Southern Wayne's Stags (2-4) play host to North Pocono. The Stags opened their season with a win over Pleasant Valley before losing three in a row. They lost in their last outing to Honesdale.
